PHILLIPS'S TIE.

A New and Eseful Invention by a Tennessee Man-A Saving of $2,000,000 to the Planters.

Yesterday we were shown a model of a new patent cotton and hay tie by Mr. W. R. Rea, of Humboldt, Tennessee. It was invented and patented by Mr. J.W. Phillips, of Humboldt, Tennessee, who is now in partnership with Mr. Rea for its introduction among planters and compressers. It has already been subected to different tests, and competent judges pronounce it to be the cheapest, most simple and effective tie ever in-vented, and it is claimed that it will supplant the flat tie as rapidly as this one did the old rope tie. Persons who are conversant with the cost of ties, and the number required for each crop of cotton, say that this invention will be a saving to the planters and merchants handling cotton of two million dollars per annum, besides saving in freight, and to the final manufacture of one dollar to one dollar and twenty-five | tornado. cents per bale. It is estimated that between four and five million dollars will be annually saved by the use of this tie. So far as the adaptability of the tie is concerned, it has already been tested both abroad and at home by Mr. Phillips, who has been in the compress business for the past two years, and thoroughly understands the business. In tom of his pockets, and then squealed | this connection, we would state that in all of the tests made no break occurred, was no go, as the sharpers were too well a fact which compress men will perceive affords a saving of time, trouble, labor and expense. The general adaption and future use of this tie is a mere question of time, for its merits are unquestionable. Economy, simplicity, rellability and durability are the features that guarantee its success. This hook and and tie is being manufactured by the responsible and enterprising firm of Ludlow, Taylor & Co., manufacturers and dealers in wire and wire goods, at Nos. 219 and 221 Market street, St. Louis, and by the next crop will be ready in 194 Second street. and handed over for present record, with acquainted with machinery and iron, the names of those for whom prayers and no man's opinion on this subject is entitled to more weight.

Mr. Phillips is now traveling through the cotton States for the purpose of introducing the tie. He will shortly be in this city and give it a practical test. FLOWERS, bulbous roots, plants, bouquets and decorations. Craig's, 379 Mair.

the city hall, at eight o'clock last night, whereupon the following commu-

being of opinion that no further action on your part was necessary, I considered it proper to withhold my signature un-til you were notified of the action of the committee. Mr. Randolph has been retained to defend the sinking fund anything to convince you of the necesity for additional counsel to see to the interests of the city owing to the many suits which have been for years pending in the courts; however, in this connec tion I regret to be compelled to say that the council could have by prompt action prevented much litigation and aided materially in the collection of past-due taxes. It must have occurred to each and every member the uselessness of pressing suits for titles to property, and after securing the title ermitting the former owner to retain he property and receive the rents for it, Yet this subject has been before you for over a year without positive action. I do not propose, in this communication, to enumerate the suits that are pressing and the necessity for prompt action. I simply desire, if you approve of the ac-tion of the committee, that you instruct me to sign the contract, that Mr. Craft may enter on the duties of the office. Another matter I request to call your attention to is this: It appears that a warrant was issued in favor of Dr. P. P. Fraime on the first of October, 1866, for $2500. It is shown afterward that the warrant was reported as lost, and the council ordered that another or duplicate warrant issue, on Dr. Fraime giving bond and security to indemnify the city.

This action was had February 2d, 1869. Dr. Fraime now makes demand for the warrant, and before anything is done toward paying it, I recommend that the subject be referred to the finance committee and city attorney for examination and report. W. G. Tate, Alias Robert Adams, Arrested at the Instance of the Sheriff of Dyer County.

Last night Detective M'Cune arrested s man named Robert Adams, alias W. G. Tate, upon the charge of murder. The officer found Adams in a negro house on Short Gayoso street. Detective M'Cone, when he approached the heuse, found out that two other men, brothers of Adams, were in the room. The house was surrounded by Sergeant Arrata and four policemen, and when Detective M'Cune entered the room he presented his pistol, and told them that he would shoot the first man that moved. He then took hold of Adams and marched him out to the officers, Detective M'Cune has tracked up the accused and arrested him pursuant to the following card:

I wish W. G. Tate, who murdered B C. Craig in Dyer county, on the ninth day of March, 1875, arrested and lodged in some safe jail, so that I can get him. Said W.G. Tate left wearing blue pants, a little worn; black overcoat, grey jeans dresscoat, a little worn, and a white hat, with his name, W. G. Tate, on it. He is about five feet seven inches high; weighs about one hundred and forty-five pounds; short neck, and a little stoopshouldered; sharp nose and chin; high cheek-bones; very wide cheek to cheek; looks down or away in conversation; auburn hair; is about twenty-five years old; wears no beard. JOHN M. NICHOLS, Sheriff of Dyer county. Dyerseurg, Tenn., March 12, 1875.

The man arrested answers the above description and is believed to be the fugitive. When M'Cune entered the room last night, one of the men started to blow out the candle, but the officer's prompt action in presenting his pistol deterred the three men. After selecting Adams from the number he permitted his two brothers to remain at home. Murdefers and thieves who wish to avoid arrest should not come within Curlew M'Cune's range, for he is sure to catch them.
